Guidelines for Applicants

Dublin City University Business School PhD Scholarship 2022

Guidelines for Applicants

Overview

DCU Business School invites applications for a PhD scholarship. The scholarship is open to applicants who will register in Year 1 of the full-time PhD programme in DCU Business School for the 2022/2023 academic year.

Our PhD programme combines scholarly theory-building with a strong applied focus. Research scholars work under the supervision of academic experts and are an important part of DCU Business School's vibrant research community. The scholarship will allow the successful student to undertake research in one of the following academic groups:

- Work, Psychology & Strategy
- Enterprise & Innovation
- Financial & Operational Performance

Further details on the academic groups in DCU Business School, including faculty profiles, research interests and publications, are available here: <https://business.dcu.ie/academic-staff/>

The Scholarship

The following scholarship type will be awarded:

A scholarship with an annual stipend of €18,500 per annum (for a maximum of four years); payment of PhD fees (for a maximum of four years); and up to €5,000 to support research activity (over the four year period).

Eligibility Criteria

- Successful applicants are required to meet the PhD eligibility criteria of DCU (<https://www.dcu.ie/registry/making-postgraduate-research-application>). They will normally hold an honours master's degree (taught or by research). Students in the final year of a master's degree may apply.

- Applicants must have the support of a DCU Business School academic supervisor. Potential supervisors can be identified from the DCU Business School website: <https://business.dcu.ie/academic-staff/>
- The DCU Business School Scholarship will only be awarded for full-time PhD study based at DCU for the period of the award. Successful applicants will register in year 1 during the academic year 2022/2023.
- Applicants should indicate if they have any additional stipend or alternative external sources of funding. DCU Business School scholars on an annual stipend of €18,500 cannot normally be in receipt of a concurrent scholarship or educational grant greater than €4,000 per annum during the period of their scholarship.

The award will commence on 1st November 2022. Please note that international applicants intending to travel to Ireland must meet the visa requirements for Ireland prior to the commencement of a scholarship. International applicants will not be able to receive scholarship payments until they have arrived in Ireland and set up a bank account and applied for a PPS number.

Successful scholars will be required to engage in, on average, six hours of relevant academic service per week. This service may take the form of tutorials, lectures, grading, research assistance or other relevant activities deemed appropriate to the scholar's personal and professional development.

Scholarship Application Guidelines and Process

- All DCU Business School PhD Scholarship applicants are required to submit the following documentation in soft copy as a single PDF file:

APPLICATION FORM NOTES

Notes on Section 2: Academic Record

This section of your application is worth 60% of the overall assessment, reflecting the emphasis on awarding the scholarship to exceptional candidates. Evaluators will consider such factors as academic grades, class position and previous academic awards. However, the following are also important: evidence of particular suitability for PhD research, relevant work or professional experience, specific personal motivations for pursuing a higher degree by research, and longer term career plans.

Applicants should include any information that they feel the evaluators should know which they feel would strengthen their application.

Applicants should fully complete all sections of the application form and adhere to the specified word limit.

Applicants must include a results transcript for each year of their undergraduate and master's degrees [non-DCU applicants only]. The transcripts must be original and notarised. They should be scanned, appended to, and submitted in soft copy as part of your application file.

Applications must include details of two independent referees who will be willing to provide a reference should they be shortlisted.

Notes on Section 3: Research Proposal

This section of the application is worth 40% of the overall assessment. Only projects which are well thought through, innovative and indicate good potential to make a substantial contribution to knowledge will be supported. The research proposal should be a maximum 3000 words in length and should address the following issues:

- The background to the proposed research, research question and objectives
- The preliminary literature review
- The research methodology to be employed
- The expected impact the research will have on theory development and practice

It may also be relevant to comment on why the applicant has chosen a particular research supervisor, and/or why they have chosen DCU Business School, to pursue the proposed research.

Applicants should insert their research proposal into the relevant section of the application form. Proposals should include a list of relevant references to support the proposed research.

The proposal should not exceed the word limit (excluding references).
